How ZipRecruiter Works

ZipRecruiter is powered by sophisticated matching technology, data-driven expertise, and a world-class team. These qualities make ZipRecruiter the best hiring platform for employers and job seekers. Today, 80% of employers who post a job get a quality candidate through the site within 24 hours.

Using the site is simple. Job seekers can quickly upload their resume, request references, search for their dream job, and apply with just one click—which make submitting applications faster and easier than ever. The employer experience is equally efficient, enabling users to post their open positions to 100+ job boards with just one click, and then manage, screen, and rank candidates—all in one place.

Company History

Before ZipRecruiter, traditional job hunting was a notoriously tedious process. Tailoring a resume, filling out forms, and crafting a cover letter for just one position could take hours. And the process for employers was equally as difficult.

In 2010, ZipRecruiter CEO and co-founder Ian Siegel decided, “There has to be a better way to hire.” He and his co-founders then started ZipRecruiter, a best-in-class service that connects employers and job seekers quickly and easily.

Knowing they could revolutionize the hiring process, Ian and his co-founders financed the early stages of the company on their own. Afterward, ZipRecruiter raised a Los Angeles record of $63 million in an August 2014 Series A round.

Then just a four-person enterprise around a kitchen table, ZipRecruiter is now comprised of 800+ employees working in offices in Santa Monica, Tempe, London, and Tel Aviv.
